Three Little Forms from Heaven.
Three pairs of dimpled arms as white as snow, Held me in soft embrace;
Three little cheeks, like velvet peaches soft,
Were placed against my face.
Three tiny pairs of eyes, so clear, so deep, Looked up in mine this even;
Three pairs of lips kissed me a sweet "good night,"
Three little forms from heaven!

Ah, 'tis well that "little ones" should love us;
It light's our fate when alone;
To know that once our pure Saviors' hands had been Bringing "little ones" to home!
Said he not, "of such is heaven," and blessed them,
And held them to his breast; Is't not sweet to know that when they leave us,
'Tis there they go to rest?
And yet, ye tiny angels of my house!
Three hearts enfolded in mine!
How 'twould be shattered, if the Lord should say,
"These angels are not mine!"

T. B. ALDRICH.

VARIETY.

"I like your impudence," as a pretty girl said when her lover kissed her.
Talkers will refrain from evil speaking when his tenets refrain from evil hearing.
If you have a hankering after rebellion, take a wife, a d. then attend a concert with a handsome female friend.
"What are you doing?" said a father to his son, who was tinkering with an old watch. "Improving my time," was the witty rejoinder.
What is the difference between snatching a man and killing a dog? One is assaulting with intent to kill, and the other a killing with intent to eat.

A captain of a vessel loading coals, went into a merchant's counting house, and requested the loan of a rake. The merchant, looking toward his clerks replied: "I have a number of them, but none I believe will be hauled over the coals." A justice better versed in law than gospel, married a couple in this way: "Hold up your hands. You solemnly swear that you will faithfully perform the duties of your office, jointly and severally, according to your best skill and judgment, as help you God; that all—see one dollar." Surgons sometimes come out with a good thing that "Brethren," said he, "God had ordered the ark to a committee on naval affairs, it is my opinion it wouldn't have been built yet."

"Wonderful things are done nowadays," said Mr.
Timmons. "The doctor has given Flack's boy a new hip from his cheek."
"Ah!" said the lady, "many's the time I have known a pair taken from mine, and no very painful operation, either."

A New Jersey paper tells a story of a well known character, who frequently figured on the news in New York. While on duty, as soon as they had retired to their room to deliberate, he would button up his coat and "turn in" on a bench, exclaiming: "Gentlemen, I'm for bringing in a verdict for plaintiff, (or defendant, as he felt settled in his mind), and all creation can't move me. Therefore as soon as you have all agreed with me, wake me up, and we'll go in."

PHYSICAL NECESSITY OF THE SABBATH.—The unvarying advance of time is broken into days and weeks, and we feel a most decided rest on Saturday night, and we make a new start on Monday morning.
It must be dreadful for a man to work straight on, Sunday and all other days. It is impossible that any man could do so long. The man who refuses to observe a weekly day of rest will knock his head against the whole system of things, to the detriment of his health.

The subject of first sight was being talked over at a tea table, when the lady who presided said she always formed an idea of a person at first sight; and that idea, she found was generally a correct one.
"Mama," said her youngest son, in a shrill voice that attracted the attention of all persons. "Well, my dear," said the fond mother, "what do you want?" "I want to know," said the young America, "what you thought when you first saw me?"

John Broughton's "Tread light, for your heart is under your feet, love," is more than a motto for a lover who thus goes skating on his lady's heart: Her heart is like a frozen lake,
On whose old brink I stand;
Oh, under my foot,
And take me by the hand!
And lead me, loving saint, the way To where the ice is thin;
That I may break beneath my foot, And let a lover in.

MAXIMS FOR HUSBANDS.—Revolve in the morning to be patient and cheerful during the day. Laugh heartily on finding all the buttons of your shirt—as usual. Say, merrily, "Boys will be boys," when you discover that the children have emptied the contents of the water tub, or when you find on gazing your chin with a razor, remember that I carry in but skin deep; and in order to divert your thoughts from the pain, recite a speech from Hamlet, or indulge in one of the harmonies of our native land. If break fast is not ready for you, chuckle and grin pleasantly at the usual remark, "What a merry heart is he who continual feast, and depart to your daily business, imagining yourself a sufferer from indigestion."

A PORTRAIT UNDER DIFFICULTIES.—The last thing which stirred in my world—I mean in my workshop in the studio building—was a German of the carpenter persuasion. At least he had a side pocket, and folding two foot rule with a shaving on the left curl and a poor trait painter? he inquired.
"Truly I am?" I replied. "I want you to paint like me, to my taste." "With pleasure," he said.
"See now, that is not possible. He lies glibly in the purvey of the studio, and he is a German in the "Well, have you a photograph of him?" "No," he said. "Or a bust?" "No," he said. "Or an engraving?" "No," he said. "Well, then, what have you got?" "I got his things here," he said. "He brought forth a small book, greatly worn, which he slowly opened, and unfolded from it a broad leaf, showing with German emblems and craggy pot book inscriptions, which looked like larger beer signs.
"What is that?" "It is a piece of paper," he said.
Look and read. Plume eyes, proud hair, rosy skin, pig nose—and all day, so forth. He had a good deal of expression like me." (Where this latter could have been I could not imagine.) "Yes—and he was a plume eye." "Oh, a gentle, I suppose, on his chin?" "No. It was a plume eye on his chin." He had a beard like me, and look like me. Put me in a more older man than me." "Ah, indeed?" "Yes—bait him with a pipe on a table, and and a girl on his hands." "What?" "Yes—men little daughter. I brings her here to be colored." It was a bold thing to do; but on this small capital I went to work and succeeded. At least, judging Kirchheimer said so, and he ought to know, for he was a first-rate fellow, and went me, over and above the price agreed upon, a dozen butle of Rudelheimer. A suspicion seemed indeed to haunt his mind that the portrait resembled himself much more than it did the late Herr Kirchheimer, per—what? "Ven I kins to be more older it will do about as good for mein picture as for de old one."
